WHAT IS A GROUP RELATIONS CONFERENCE

The Conference is a temporary organization that aims to explore and learn from experiencing conscious and unconscious processes as they manifest themselves in the “here-and-now” of group dynamics. The intention is to generate new ways of thinking and learning and to reappraise our knowledge and values; we have the opportunity to experience ourselves in multiple and diverse roles. Assistance is provided to achieve real and sustainable change in interpreting the way we interpret the different roles in our organizations and lives, with a particular focus on roles calling for an exercise of authority and leadership.

THE CONFERENCE METHODOLOGY

The organization of the Conference and the activities proposed to participants generate experiential learning opportunities. This means learning through lived experiences of group and organizational processes, which promotes reflective skills and encourages a spirit of inquiry. Participants and staff can critically examine different experiences, work behaviors and ways of interpreting the roles of leaders or followers.

This type of training has no therapeutic intent and can sometimes be stressful. For this reason it is recommended that people who are experiencing emotional stress or difficulty in their personal lives postpone their participation to next edition.

THE PRIMARY TASK OF THE 2020 CONFERENCE

To learn through experience about the conscious and unconscious aspects of authority and leadership that will enable us to explore and understand the process that begins with the recognition of subjection and progresses towards the possibility of becoming a subject by actively addressing personal choices and collective decisions.

LANGUAGES: ENGLISH, ITALIAN

A consultant will take up the role of interpreter.

Dear Participants,

as the previous editions of ALI, the 23rd Italian group relations conference sponsored by Il Nodo Group will take place in Grado in the gulf of Trieste. ALI 2020 will last one day more than usual. It will take place from Wednesday March the 25.03 to Sunday 29.03.2020. The conference is designed as a residential workshop in which the learning is experiential. No lectures, nor round tables: groups and inter-group dynamics, brainstorming, dialogues and discussion.

In 2019 ALI (main theme: Neither peace nor war) begun a series of conferences focused on the processes that have been shaping the western and eastern cultures after the first and the second world wars. The title of this edition comes from the themes that emerged from the previous editions.

What does it mean to be a ‘subject’ in times of collapse of boundaries and identities? How does one ‘become a subject’ and how is this related to ‘subjection’? How does it influence the processes of role taking and the exercise of authority, leadership and followership? ALI 2020 is designed to allow experiential exploration of these issues.

The turning point of the present cultures is the ultra-liberalism, the crisis of socialism and communism, the turbo-capitalism and the super-consumerism. The so-called ‘globalization’ has accelerated the liquefaction of collective and personal identities that guaranteed social stability. The ensuing processes, far from opening a phase of unlimited liberation, have been building the post-modern horizon as an era of open issues that are difficult to be solved and even difficult to be thought of. The reaction to the sudden expansion of geopolitical borders has surely brought about new exciting opportunities and challenges, but also a deep and new malaise and discomfort.

The political life, as we had experienced after the WW II, has changed. During the last three decades we have seen the increasing power of boundary-less multinational companies, always bigger and bigger, as well as the expansion of ‘social media’ that have promoted the artificial intelligence and radically transformed our daily life. With the creation and diffusion of virtual reality, the relationship between imagination and real reality are obfuscated and blurred. The traditional concepts of ‘container’ need to be reconsidered and updated. The same is true for the idea of democracy in times where leaders can (and do) connect directly to their potential voters while representativity (actually the heart of the idea of democracy) collapses and is bypassed by populist shortcuts.

At the core of human life there are more and more paradoxes that cannot be solved in a quick way. The illusion of getting rid of these existential paradoxes is perhaps one of the reasons of the present crisis. One of them is the relationship that knots together subjection and subjectivity: the awareness of being subjected to something or to someone’s else influence and the work that needs to be done in order to free ourselves from outer and inner limitations.

The questions that we are proposing to the participants of ALI 2020 relate directly to the implication of these basic processes to our organizational lives. The focus is on the intertwining of conscious and unconscious psychic phenomena, on the puzzling and inextricable combination of reasoning and fantasies that influences the individuals’ inner life and the group functioning.

Looking forward to working with you on all this, we send our best wishes

Giovanni Foresti, Director

Yossi Triest, Associate Director

WHO MAY BENEFIT THE MOST

Taking part in Group Relations Conference can be particularly useful for those who work in business organizations, public services and not-for-profit organizations, for those who are interested in understanding and managing organizations and group dynamics within complex situations and want to enhance their competence and effectiveness in dealing with them.

All organizational processes include an emotional, irrational and unconscious dimension. When this component is not recognized and managed, the system's effectiveness decreases or comes to a halt, therefore implying both an emotional and financial cost for the organization itself. Participation in the Conference allows you to observe, recognize and manage this dimension, essential for the functioning of each system and organization.

For this reason the Conference can be particularly effective when two or more members from the same organization register, especially in the case or prospect of prominent changes, crises, mergers, takes-overs, etc. Therefore, if more people from the same organization participate, each will benefit from a discount.

DURATION

The Conference has an increased duration compared to previous editions: it starts at 11.00 am on 25 March 2020 and ends at 16.30 on 29 March. The reception and registration of the participants are organized from 10.00 to 10.50 on 25 March.

Participants are required to comply with the entire Conference program, which is residential because cohabitation is an integral part of learning.

THEMES, GOALS AND VALUE

To imagine humans at first as isolated beings, rather than embedded in a social matrix, is a rooted and still present tendency in western culture. The Group Relations Conference ALI 2020 offers the participant the opportunity to experience connections between individual, group and organization, and the boundaries of time, space and task.

The experience allows us to observe in action conscious and unconscious dynamics of competition and cooperation, the nature of authority experienced through different roles and the reciprocal influence that each of us has on others.

The focus on Subjectivity and Subjection directs the participant's attention to the dynamics that characterize the individuals in relationship and within the institutional containers in which they find themselves in this particular historical phase of the organizations and to the meaning of acquiring a sufficiently stable identity that allows you to feel that you are the author of your choices.

Il Nodo Group is a scientific cultural not-for-profit Association which historically originated from a professional team formed in Turin in the nineties. It has developed study, training and consultancy activities in cooperation with the Tavistock & Portman NHS Trust in London and other national and international scientific institutions. The Primary Task of Il Nodo Group is to promote the exploration and understanding of conscious and unconscious relational processes in individuals, groups, organizations and the society, as instruments of change management, support to the development and wellbeing. Today ALI is a firmly established member of the Group Relations international network and has become "the Italian formula of the Tavistock Method".

UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF

INTERNATIONAL
ASSOCIATION

IPA - International Psychoanalytical Association is an international association of psychoanalysts that has about 70 constituent associations and 12,000 members. It was founded in 1910 by Sigmund Freud, on a proposal by Sándor Ferenczi. Its first president was Carl Gustav Jung and the first secretary Otto Rank. It is the first organization in the world for the accreditation and regulation of the profession of Psychoanalyst. The mission is to ensure the continuous vigor and development of psychoanalysis for the benefit of patients in psychoanalytic treatment. The objectives include the creation of new psychoanalytic groups, the stimulation of scientific debates, the promotion of research, the improvement of training procedures (training).

OFEK - Organization, Person, Group. Association for the Study of Group and Organizational Processes (Public Non-Profit Society) is a non-profit educational organization founded in Israel in 1986. It deals with the development and application of psychoanalytic theories and open systems in the Tavistock tradition of group relations. Since its establishment, OFEK has held annual international conferences on group relations in association with the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations in London. It also runs six-monthly conferences in Hebrew, thematic conferences, conferences and workshops tailored to organizations, scientific meetings, ongoing professional development courses (Touch OFEK courses and seminars) and additional activities for its members and the general public.

SOCIETÀ
PSICOANALITICA
ITALIANA

The Italian Psychoanalytic Society (SPI) was founded in Teramo 7 June 1925 and was recognized in 1936 as a society of the International Psychoanalytical component (IPA) established in 1910 by Sigmund Freud. Currently SPI is present in almost all the national territory through eleven centres that bring together more than a thousand members between psychoanalysts and students who are active in major Italian cities. It aims to train analysts through personal analysis and a theoretical and clinical course of five years, including the supervision of clinical cases with a senior analyst with years of experience. The SPI analysts, during their whole working lives, typically conduct both clinical and theoretical activities, thus ensuring the continuous progression of their analytical capacity.

akri the a.k. rice institute for the study of social systems

For over 50 years, the A.K. Rice Institute for the Study of Social Systems (AKRI) has helped individuals and organizations understand the complexity, beauty, power and importance of groups. Its mission is to support and advance the study of group relations through educational initiatives. Using a model originated at the Tavistock Institute in London, the approach facilitates learning within experiential 'group relations conferences' which help identify the often hidden, unexamined, and unconscious aspects of groups and organizations. AKRI also helps train practitioners and skilled consultants in this field through its training the certification program. The ALI2019 Conference is endorsed by the A. K. Rice Institute as consistent with its educational standards for Group Relations training in the Tavistock tradition.
