

ACTIVISM AS A SPIRITUAL PRACTICE:

a Latinx-led leadership event

Online Group Relations Hybrid Learning Event

Activism as a Spiritual Practice is a three-day co-curricular online experiential learning laboratory in the Group Relations tradition. It is a continuation of three prior on site conferences hosted by CSU Dominguez Hills. As in the past, this conference will be followed by opportunities for participants to share and reflect upon their application of conference learning.

Activism

We have a problem. Many problems. Important and urgent problems that individually and collectively threaten our livelihood, our national identity, our lives. And as important as it is to take a both/and approach to these issues, our collective survival demands that we also attend to the way we work as groups.

Spiritual

Science alone cannot change our global warming problem, as its roots are selfishness, apathy and greed. Policies alone cannot end misogyny, racism or racial injustice, as their roots are exploitation, advantage and dehumanization. Laws and vaccines will not end the COVID 19 pandemic, as the obstacles are mistrust, rigid beliefs and disregard for others.

Practice

As members of a larger Latinx community, we experience leadership as both insiders and outsiders, holding a dynamic space between racial, ethnic, socio-economic, religious and spiritual groups, bringing perspectives and voices that are at once needed and often overlooked or held in contempt.
